REMINISCENCES OF PIONEER DAYS

Interesting Gleanings From the Records Left by the Men Who Laid the Foundation Stone of San Mateo County

Story of the Formation of the County--Pioneers Could Give the Modern Politician Pointers on the Art of Ballot-Box
Manipulation--1000 People Cast 2000 Votes.

To the average reader there are few subjects of more general interest than that of history. Especially is this true of local history, the chronicling of the events of interest to the community where one makes his home and with the affairs of which personal interest is identified. To the older resident, this is especially true from the fact that the information imparted is largely reminiscent in its character. To those who have more recently become identified with the community in which they may pass the remainder of their days, information as to the earlier doings of local interest are instructive as well as entertaining. From this source, more than any other, we may become informed as to the community in which we reside, and frequently better able to appreciate the opportunities for future advancement.

So far but little has been written concerning the earlier history either of San Mateo county or of Redwood City, and to a considerable extent the reminiscences of pioneers, whose ranks are becoming rapidly decimated by the calls of the Grim Destroyer, must be relied upon for this information. Fortunately this paper is in possession of what is undoubtedly not only a general history of the city and county, but at the same time a complete chronicle of the doings of its inhabitants almost from the date of the foundation of the city. In no other place can this be found than in the files of a local newspaper. Founded in the very early portion of 1859, less than three years after the first organization of the county, and then known as "The San Mateo County Gazette," the Times-Gazette has been continuously published since that date. Files of the paper from the first year of its publication are yet in our possession, and from these we shall from time to time cull such matters as may be of historical or reminiscent value.

The first number of the paper was issued on Saturday, April 9th, 1859, the publisher then being William Godfrey. At that time Mr. Godfrey was a stranger in the community, unacquainted with its people, its resources, and its methods and ambitions. After a short time of endeavor, he was forced to realize the necessity of the assistance of some one more fully acquainted with the people and methods of the community whose doings it was the duty of the paper to chronicle. For this purpose he secured the assistance of the late Judge Charles N. Fox, who remained its editor until the end of the year. Some realization of the extent of the field in which the paper, the first to be published in the county, was being launched, and the troubles with which its publisher was forced to contend may be gleaned from a statement of the business and population of this city made in the second issue of the paper. At that time the town contained within its limits thirty dwelling houses, and claimed a permanent population of 175, with the addition of a few transient residents. At that time the business community comprised three general merchandise stores, two drug stores, two blacksmith shops, one wagon shop, a ship yard, one hotel and two livery stables. No mention is made in the paper of the number of saloons then in the place, but from the fact that there soon appeared notices of the work of a Division of the Sons of Temperance along temperance lines, it must be taken for granted that there was at least an abundantly sufficient supply of dispensaries of liquid refreshments.

Probably but few of the present residents of the community are aware of the circumstances surrounding the original organization of San Mateo county, and as these are somewhat out of the ordinary, a short account of the circumstances under which it sprang into the responsibilities of local self government might be of interest at the outset of this fragmentary collation of facts and legends. The territory now comprising the county was originally contained within the limits of San Francisco county, and was taken from that county by the act of the Legislature providing for the consolidation of the county and city governments of that city. This act was passed by the Legislature in 1856, and one or two incongruities, which apparently crept unnoticed into the law, led to a considerable legal tangle, requiring subsequent action by the legislature necessary before the threads were unraveled. The act provided that the election for the first county officers and the selection of a county seat should be held on the second Monday in May, 1856, and that the officials selected should immediately assume their duties. A subsequent section of the same act however provided that the law should not take effect until the first of the following July. Notwithstanding this latter provision, the election was held in May as provided in the act.

From the account of this election and subsequent results, it seems evident that the people of that day were no less versed in the tricks of political chicanery than are their more modern successors of today. At this election, the account states that the ballot boxes were stuffed and other frauds resorted to until when the returns were summarized it was found that nearly 2000 votes were cast, whereas the total population of the territory embraced in the new county did not exceed 1000. On the face of these returns, Belmont was selected as the county seat, and the officers selected were as follows: B. E. Fox, county judge; W. T. Gough, district attorney; Robert Gray, county clerk; Barney Mulligan, sheriff; William Rogers, treasurer; Charles Fair, assessor; John Johnson, Charles Clark and Benjamin Fenwick, supervisors. Immediately after the election steps were taken by B. G. Lathrop and others to contest it.

For this purpose five separate actions were brought, each depending on the same facts, though but one of these ever came to trial. These were heard by the County Court, sitting at Belmont, on the 10th of June. As a result of the trial, the votes of three precincts were thrown out, making a radical change in the result of the election. The decision of the court ended in the selection of Redwood City as the seat of government of the new county and the installation of the following as its first officers: B. F. Fox, county judge; W. T. Gough, district attorney; B. G. Lathrop, clerk; John W. Ackerson, sheriff; Curtis Baird, treasurer; S. B. Gerson, assessor; John Johnson, Charles Clark and James Berry, supervisors.

A short time after this an action was commenced to test the validity of the entire organization, the incongruity of the two sections of the act referred to being relied upon as the basis of the contest. This case was heard at the October term of the Supreme Court, by the decision of which the entire proceeding were declared void. During the interim, the entire machinery of the county government had been in operation--assessments levied, taxes collected, courts held, and judgments, both civil and criminal, rendered--thus placing the officials in a rather critical position. They however decided to take the bull by the horns, and continued their functions as de facto officers. When the Legislature of 1858 met it was confronted by a rather peculiar state of affairs. The government of the county had been in full operation, but it was without legal organization. Added to this there was in the county treasury nearly $4,000 which had been collected for the State, but no law by which the State could claim the money, and no means by which the officers could be compelled to turn over the funds. As the only means of bridging the difficulty a special act was passed legalizing all of the acts of the officials and confirming their title to the offices which they had filled. Following this the funds belonging to the State were turned over by the officers.

In 1858, the first brick building in the city, the court house, was erected at a cost of $10,000, a price so low for the character of the work as to excite general comment. In the following year four brick business buildings were built.

In his opening editorial, the editor of the paper presented an estimate of the value of the local journal to a community which holds with equal force at this time. In part he says: "A local newspaper, properly conducted, becomes the center of the entire system of a county--the medium through which her own citizens derive their intelligence of what is transpiring in their own county--from which non-residents who are looking thitherward with a view of investment or settlement seek to learn the character of the soil and of the people and the extent to which business of the kind they seek may be pressed. Again, it is the medium through which her business men make known to each other and the world their business and their wants."

In its early history this city was considered an important lumber port, being the chief outlet for a large redwood lumber district. As an evidence of the value of our facilities for water transportation and the possible bearing of this advantage on the future prosperity, it is stated in the first issue, that as many as 15 vessels had been seen on the waterway at one time, while during the year each issue chronicles the arrival and departure of at least a half dozen vessels each week.

That the inhabitants of the county at this time were not all of a mild and peaceful nature is evidenced by the fact that on the 30th of April, 1859, four men were before the District Court to receive sentence for various degrees of murder of which they had just been convicted. The first of these was Wm. Morris, convicted of the murder of Richard H. Doak. Morris faced the court apparently unconcerned as to the fate awaiting him, and when asked the customary question as to whether he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him, began a long harangue, complaining that he had not been allowed to see his friends, that his case had not been properly conducted by his counsel, and that witnesses had sworn falsely against him. In this he was finally interrupted by the judge, who informed him that the objections had come too late and that in the opinion of the Court he had been given every opportunity and that his crime merited the extreme penalty of the law. Here Morris again interrupted the Judge to say that he desired that his execution be fixed for as early a date as possible; he wished, if he must die, to die within a week, as he could repent of all his sins in that time, and preferred that to living any longer in jail. He was sentenced to be hanged on the 10th of June, at which time he was executed.

Henry Wapner was the next man to face the outraged law. He had been found guilty of murder in the first degree, his crime being the killing of Louise Vollmer. Wapner was unable to speak English, but through an interpreter he protested his innocence of premeditated crime, blaming his fondness for liquor for the plight in which he found himself. He claimed that the woman had been his friend, and that the fatal act must have been committed while he was drunk. The Judge was not convinced by this statement, and the sentence of death was pronounced.

John Reynolds was sentenced to a life term in the State prison. He had been found guilty of murder in the first degree, in the killing of Charles Mulloy. Following the example of his companions before the bar of Justice, he protested his innocence of deliberate intent, although he did not attempt to deny his crime.

George Gilman had been found guilty of murder in the second degree, was the last of the four men who had imbedded their hands in human blood to be called before the bar of justice. He had been convicted of murder in the second degree, in the killing of S. S. Russell, and had been recommended to the mercy of the Court by the jury. He was given a sentence of 10 years in the State prison, the lowest penalty allowed by law.

Under the heading of "News From the East," in the paper of the same date appeared the following item: "Billy Mulligan, well known in this county, has been severely beaten in a New York bar room, and his eyes so badly injured by the process of gouging that it is thought he will lose his eyesight."

PROMPT WORK BY FIREMEN

Efficient Action of Fire Department Prevents Serious Damage

The efficiency and prompt response of the fire department saved Redwood City from a conflagration Saturday afternoon. Shortly after 2 o'clock a blaze started in the tailoring and cleaning shop of Louis Brenneke at 5 Broadway. Mr. Brenneke was in an adjoining store at the time, having been absent from his place of business hardly more than a minute, and when he returned the building was filled with flames and volumes of black smoke pouring from the door and windows. The alarm was given and the chemical and hose companies were quickly at the scene and the fire was promptly subdued. Had the department been less prompt there is no telling what loss would have resulted, or where the fire would have stopped. Possibly half the business portion of the city would have been destroyed. It is believed that the blaze started by the explosion of a quantity of gasoline.

Mr. Brenneke was badly burned about the face in attempting to remove some of his property from the building. About twenty-five suits of clothes belonging to his patrons were destroyed. The building which was considerably damaged, is owned by local parties and will be rebuilt.

Local Ball Team Ready.

All is now in readiness for the opening of the baseball season for 1909. Last Saturday a number of the high school boys assisted the members of the regular team to haul loam and the whole infield has received a coating several inches deep. This should make the infield exceptionally fast. The first game will be played with the White House team of San Francisco, April 4th. Roney Reholz, the old Redwood player is captain of the visiting team. The band will escort the team to the grounds for the first game and P. P. Chamberlain will throw the first ball over the plate. Ned Heaney will act as umpire.

Don't Be a Knecker.

It is probable that nearly every person who makes an attempt to do anything in the line of public advancement finds some justification in his own mind upon which he might base the opinion that he is not appreciated. Especially is this true of the local newspaper in the smaller communities, where the news is confined to the chronicling of local and neighborhood happenings.

Often the expression, "There is nothing in the paper," is heard. Evidently the author of the remark forgets that the news of the paper is simply a record of the times. If it is the ana of a quiet neighborhood, the dwellers therein have no right to complain. They alone are responsible for this lamentable fact. If the community is a live one, filled with energy and life, the newspaper will be a reflex of this condition, if these elements are lacking in the community, the same must of necessity be true of the paper, which at the best can be but a reflex of its surroundings.

Every local newspaper should receive the hearty support and encouragement of the community in which it is published. Much of the ultimate prosperity of the locality depends upon their success. Many an otherwise good town is a failure because the local paper is neglected. Many a good merchandising center proves a failure because the merchants fail to appreciate the value of their home papers. This is wrong. Don't stand in your own light, but get behind the local paper and push it along. Don't knock at every possible opportunity, but rather do what lies in your power to encourage and assist the paper to the position it should occupy, and your business and the community in general will reap the benefit.

History and Anecdote.

On the first page of this issue of the Times-Gazette we begin the publication of a series of sketches dealing with the earlier history of San Mateo County in general and Redwood City in particular. These articles should be of especial interest to residents of this city, if for no other reason than that in them will be found the first written history of the pioneer days of this important section. While no attempt has been made to secure what might be termed a connected story, all matters of general interest connected with the early affairs of the community will be presented as nearly as possible in chronological order.

The chief source from which the information upon which these articles are based is the files of this paper, the first to be published in the county, and the issuance of which has been continued uninterruptedly to this time. By this means we are not only able to secure an authentic chronicle of public events, but to add what should constitute a special attraction, in the presentation of numerous interesting social and personal anecdotes of the founders of what is today regarded as one of the most prosperous and important sections of the State.

Members of the Board of Trade should make no further delay in arranging for some concerted plan for an endeavor to secure some improvement of Redwood Creek. The excessive rains of the last winter cause the streams to deposit some quantities of mud in the channel. If these accumulations are allowed to continue serious injury may be done to our shipping. Come gentlemen, let's wake up and secure the share of public improvements which rightfully belongs to us.

The Black Patti Troubadours are coming to town with another swell show, a new two-act musical comedy, "The Blackville Strollers." This Company has been so in the habit of doing things that a mere announcement of its performance in any city is sufficient to pack the house to the doors. It is one of the most popular and successful road companies in America and it can always be relied upon to give a tip-top show. All the music is spick brand new this season, and the fun and comedy in "Blackville Strollers" has new laugh provoking sayings and situations. Black Patti appears in the leading role. Tutt Whitney, that "droll" comedian, appears in the star comedy as "Sis Green." They will appear at the Alhambra Theater on Monday, March 29th.

Burlingame Has Small Klondike.

BURLINGAME, March 24.—Burlingame assumed something of the character of a mining camp after a lucky strike this morning.

F. H. Boring's excavation for a building in Burlingame avenue was the cause of the stampede. Having gone down 15 feet, he has been using a pump to free it of water. While operating the pump this morning a number of bright particles resembling gold were noticed by the laborers.

A number of samples of flour fineness were gathered during the excitement and will be sent to San Francisco for assay reports.

The popular prices, 15 and 25 cents will prevail. The program will be entirely changed Sunday night.

TRIAL OF ACCUSED OFFICERS NEAR END

Testimony is Concluded and the Argument of Attorneys Will Come Today.

ACCUSED SUPERVISORS TESTIFY

Judge Dooling Springs Surprise On Defendants—Officers Not Accused of Pecuniary Interest.

The trial of the accused supervisors was resumed before Judge Dooling Tuesday. George C. Ross made the opening address for the defense.

He stated that they would show that the Ralston Iron Works and the Clinton Woven Wire Works had bid on the Courthouse dome and that their bids had almost equaled the sum charged by the O'Brien company for the repairs to that part of the county structure.

Supervisor Coleman was then called to the stand and told his story of how the contract was awarded to the O'Brien Company. According to Coleman's statement McBain was instructed by the Board to ask the District Attorney to prepare a contract at a meeting of the Supervisors held in Coleman's office in San Mateo. Coleman declared that this was done and that the contract was regularly awarded at the meeting of September 21st.

Coleman stated that he was sure that McBain voted in the affirmative on the question of awarding the contract thus denying the testimony of the later that he did not vote one way or the other. The Supervisor also stated that he heard District Attorney Bullock offer to assist County Clerk Joseph H. Nysh in preparing the minutes of the meeting, so that the matter would appear correct on the books of the proceedings of the Supervisors.

Coleman was subjected to a grilling cross examination by Attorney Benjamin. He said that the bid of the O'Brien Construction Company for the $2991 was not filed for the reason that he did not think it necessary. As the board filed the contract he thought that was all that was required. D. E. Blackburn followed Mr. Coleman and his testimony was the same as that given by him at the Bullock trial. He said he took the advice of John McBain in all matters pertaining to the construction of the court house. He was told by him that the price of $2991 was only fair and for that reason voted for the contract when it came up on Sept. 21st, 1908. DeBenedetti made the motion and he seconded it. He was not quite sure that McBain voted for the contract.

MacBain testified that he had no recollection of having passed the bill or of having objected to Allen's claim. The item to which MacBain had objected was Allen's claim for commission on two marble slabs which were placed on the front of the Courthouse. MacBain stated that he had always objected to the tablets and had offered Allen $50 if he would have his name chiseled off. Upon further examination it was shown that the item had been stricken from the bill by former Supervisor J. Elkenroten.

The district attorney testified to receiving instructions from MacBain to prepare the contract and described the signing of the document in the presence of the whole board at the September meeting.

Louis A. Hicks a San Francisco engineer declared that the extra work on the dome was worth $3300. On cross examination he admitted that the material put in the dome was not worth much over $1600.

H. J. Ralston, president of the Ralston Iron Works, San Francisco, testified that he furnished the iron for the dome repairs and that the price offered $492 was a fair and reasonable one. C. H. Snyder of San Francisco declared that $450 was in his estimation a fair and reasonable price, and Adolph Kocour, manufacturer of seagolia, gave an estimate as to the cost of his class of material used in the Courthouse. On cross-examination it developed that the allowance had been made for about $2,000 worth of this material on the original contract the sum of $167 would represent the additional outlay necessary for the extra repair work on the dome.

During the examination of Blackburn a surprise was sprung by Judge M. T. Dooling, who stated to the counsel for the defense that they need not attempt to show that the officials did not benefit financially by the awarding of the contract, as no such claim was made in the accusations against them. According to the interpretation placed upon the accusations by the Judge the Supervisors were accused of wilful and "corrupt" misconduct in office in awarding a contract to the O'Brien Company, but that the corruption consisted only in granting an excessive award to that firm without going through the regular and lawful rules of determining such matters. To this Attorney General Benjamin assented and the question of whether the Supervisors were financially interested in the contract will not come up again.

Thursday morning the defense placed about a dozen witnesses from San Mateo and Pescadero on the stand who testified that Coleman and Blackburn had good characters in their own communities. Prosecutor Benjamin stated that no attempt was being made to show that the character of the defendants was not of the best, but the defense insisted that the evidence be admitted. Here the defense rested its case. John MacBain was called in rebuttal and testified that he had objected to this item on the ground that the contract had not been granted to the O'Brien Construction Company, and on his protest it was stricken from the bill. This took place on November 4th, two months after the contract is alleged to have been awarded.

On cross examination the defense placed in evidence another bill of Allen, in which the commission on the disputed contract was claimed to be included, but MacBain reiterated his statement that he never authorized the payment of a bill for this work and never voted upon the contract.

The case was not resumed until yesterday afternoon, Attorney Benjamin having missed his train from San Francisco.

M. Brown, J. T. Jennings, F. Miner and Henry Butts, members of the last grand jury, testified to what J. J. Bullock and the accused supervisors said before the grand jury.

The attorney for the State will begin summing up his side of the case this morning at 9:30 and will be followed by Attorney Linforth and George C. Ross who will argue for the defense. The case will go to the jury early this afternoon. The case is confident of a verdict of acquittal.

Mining Deal Ends in Law Suit.

Peter Schmidt and Mary Schmidt have commenced suit in the Superior Court against R. Hewson to recover the sum of $3000. The complainants allege that the defendant is the owner of and controls the Comstock Golden Gate Mining Co. and through it a large and miscellaneous group of capital stock of the company at 50 cents per share. The mine which is known as the Golden Gate Mine is located in Virginia City. Hewson represented that he had gone down into the mine and discovered that there was a well defined ledge of pay ore when in fact the shaft to the mine has caved in and could not be worked. Plaintiffs ask for the return of the $3000, interest from July 1, 1907 and costs of suit.

NEWS OF PESCADERO

Batch of News From Where the Sea Breezes Blow.

PESCADERO, March 26.—Geo. Steele while crossing the Butano bridge last Friday struck a chuck hole at the end of the bridge breaking his axle in to at the center and throwing the machine into the ditch. No one was hurt, Mr. Gouldson repaired the break and Mr. Steele was soon spinning down the coast again.

Mr. J. F. Steele is very sick at his home with an attack of the grip. Dr. Thompson is in attendance.

Swift Foot Karl wants to elect a school trustee that he can handle. No other need apply. Who wants it? Election to be about the first of April. He also has it planned to get Dr. Blackburn out of office by hook or crook if possible and wants Governor Gillette to appoint him for the place. We believe that Dr. Blackburn is still in office, yet.

Capt. Brown and crew of men are down from San Francisco at Pigeon Point building a cistern to contain 60,000 gallons of rain water and many other improvements are to be made.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Woodman and Mrs. Cummins went to San Francisco last Monday, business and pleasure mingled.

The road scraped is at work on the coast making some improvements. J. C. Williamson is beginning to receive freight now, after a delay of a few days. We only wish our Ocean Shore R. R. was completed. What an advantage it would be to business men and all.

What became of Edgar Shaws Petition that was sent from here? Did the Governor ever see it, who will tell?

R. E. Steele is down at Torquay for a few days.

Billy Rose and wife while riding on the grade above the Butano Bridge met with a serious accident. The horse became frightened and backed off the grade throwing them out and Mrs. Rose struck on her head. Dr. Thompson attended her and reported it as a bad cut. If a railing were placed on the outside of the road there would not be so much danger of getting hurt, this is the third team that has gone off the grade in the last two years.

While Dr. Blackburn was calling on a neighbor on business, he encountered one of our physicians who got his face slapped. We think there are some others who are deserving of the same medicine in Pescadero.

We are sorry to learn today that Mrs. Goffin is very low. She has been an invalid for some time, and indeed a great sufferer.

Mrs. Cummins after a visit with her daughter, Mrs. F. A. Woodman at Pigeon Point has returned home.

Judge McCormick is still in the ring when it comes to fixing people.

W. H. Moore is sowing red oats and will undoubtedly have a good crop as his land is in good condition. The Times-Gazette leads others following.

If it takes 3 men to put a man, 84 years old in the Tank House, how many would it take if he was 40? If you want good work bring us your job printing.

The Black bill closing saloons within a mile and a half of any University passed the assembly last Tuesday evening and is now in the hands of the Governor. J. H. O'Keefe arrived from Sacramento last Saturday confident the measure would be defeated, but the proponents of the bill brought it up late Tuesday night and carried it by a large vote. The saloon men will make a bitter fight in the courts to declare the act unconstitutional. They have already employed Walter H. Linforth to test the case. The foremost constitutional lawyers of the state say it is class legislation and will be defeated in the courts. The point which the saloonmen make is as to what shall constitute the grounds, and this will doubtless have to be settled in the courts. It is uncertain whether the courts would include the entire Stanford holdings in the definition, or whether the boundaries would be fixed at the San Francisco creek, the county road back of the university and the southerly line of the property toward Mayfield. The question of the boundary will determine whether the Wunder saloon on the Petrola road and the saloons in the vicinity of Searsville and Woodside will come within the proscribed area.

he matter of the modification of the decree has been before the court for a long time and has had a thorough legal thrashing out.

Leaves Estate to Widow.

The will of the late B. A. Barney has been filed for probate. Deceased died at Fair Oaks in December the entire estate is bequeathed to his wife, Lydia H. Barney. She is also named as executrix, but she has declined to act and has named her daughter, Mrs. Mary S. Stanley to act for her. The will was executed June 1, 1885. The estate consists of money in bank amounting to $1000. Some time before he died he deeded the greater portion of his estate to his wife and daughter. The heirs at law are the widow, Mrs. Stanley a daughter and B. B. Stanley, James M. Barney, Cecelia Barney and Clara Barney, grandchildren.

New Suits Commenced.

Young De Guigne is in receipt of $3500 monthly from his grandmother, Mrs. Abby Parrott. He is at present a student at Yale.

Resolutions of Condolence.

The following resolutions relative to the death of William Bement were adopted by Redwood Parlor No. 66, N. S. G. W. at the last regular meeting of the parlor:

Whereas, It has pleased God in His wisdom to call our late brother from an earthly to a heavenly parlor, and

Resolved, That we extend our deepest sympathy to the family of our late brother, and as a testimonial of sorrow, we drop our banner in mourning, and spread these resolutions in full on our minutes.

Mrs. Bement desires to thank all her friends for the kindness and sympathy extended to her during the sickness and at the death of her husband, and particularly the Native Sons who officiated at the funeral.

Teachers Affected by New Rule.

The following teachers living "down the peninsula" are affected by the order: Burlingame—Miss Florence E. Barrington, Miss Christine M. Stack, Miss Rose M. Stack; San Mateo—Miss Caroline M. Horton; San Carlos—Mrs. S. J. Mafrin; Redwood City—Miss A. M. Loehr, Miss Anna M. O'Connell; Menlo Park—Miss Nellie V. Casey, Miss Mary J. McCullough; Palo Alto—J. P. Nourse, F. E. Perham, Miss Wynifred L. Tarpey, Mrs. M. B. Thompson.

Accident Smashes Train Windows.

A peculiar accident occurred yesterday morning while two trains were passing each other, a freight and a passenger, between Millbrae and Easton. One of the doors of a boxcar had become opened and swinging to and fro struck one of the passenger cars, wrecking half a dozen windows. Broken glass was thrown among the passengers and for a time there was a panic in the car. One passenger, a woman whose name could not be learned was struck on the neck by a piece of flying glass and severely cut.

The Starboard Light.

"Twice a day for a week I have been harassed by day as to how far a man should go in correcting the glaring mistakes of strangers," said the man who enjoys looking in shop windows. "There is an art store downtown where the present window collection includes the picture of a ship. It is elaborately framed and has a lighthouse carved on the wooden strip at one side, but the artist should never have tried marine work, for he has got the red side light of that vessel on the starboard side. Two or three times I've been on the point of going into the store and asking the proprietor either to remove that picture or put a patch of green paint over that red, and each time my nerve has failed me. "I am half hoping that the false side light will cause a collision in that window which will smash the picture, and then my anxiety will be relieved."—New York Post.

Protective Coloring of Insects.

A well known little moth with pale green mottled wings is the only case in which I have myself watched the protection afforded by color at work. It was on a summer's evening when I saw this little moth zigzagging up and down with the most extraordinarily irregular flight and a bird pursuing it. Twice the bird swooped and just missed his prey owing to a sudden turn and drop on the part of the moth. And then to my great delight the moth dropped against the stem of a tree on which was growing a greenish gray lichen. The bird swooped again close to the tree, but failed to see the insect and quitted the chase. It took me an appreciable time to detect the little moth resting against the lichen and closely matching it in color.—Sir E. Ray Lankester in London Telegraph.

Hard to Believe.

A station master requested an increase of salary and threatened to leave if he didn't get it. The superintendent replied to his request by relating a story. "When I was a young man," said he, "I once did as you are doing—I told the superintendent of the line I was then working on what you have told me. He refused my demand and I left, and—would you believe it?—that railway line is running yet."—London Tit-Bits.

Not Encouraging.

A pastor in a rural church not far from Milwaukee announced the wedding in his church during the following week of two of his parishioners. He followed the announcement with the title of the hymn which was to be sung. It was "Mistaken Souls That Dream of Heaven"—Milwaukee Free Press.

The Connection.

Scott—Remember reading of a very rich man who said he'd sooner be poor. Mott—Yes, and probably you remember reading somewhere that all men are liars.—Boston Transcript.

Not Very Green.

"Odd, isn't it, how human ways are in such direct contradiction to nature?" "In what, for instance?" "Did you ever find anything green about a grass widow?"—Baltimore American.

The Dilemma.

"How can I ever learn to understand that girl?" "You can marry her, but when you have done that it will be too late for your understanding of her to be of any benefit to you."—Exchange.

Too Late Now.

Mother—I hope you are nice to that young man who has been calling dear. Daughter—I don't have to be now, mamma, for he's in love with me.—Exchange.

At the Minstrels.

"What," asked Mistah Bones of Mistah Tambo at the conclusion of the justly celebrated silver snuff clog dance by Professor Slinghele—"what am I to do at a red headed brakeman dat gits offen a freight train an' lets it run in on de sidin' at a small town at midnigh an' a man dat has a whole lot o' work to do an' keeps gittin' sombody else ter do it because he loafs all de time?"

"How dat?" asked Mistah Tambo, nervously strumming his tambourine. Mistah Bones repeated his conundrum, and Mr. Tambo immediately said:

"What am de diffrence, anyway?" "One am a-workin' de switch an' de uthah am a-switchin' de work," explained Mistah Bones.

Before the applause had subsided Mr. Squeekin de Throtte, the celebrated contra tenor, stepped to the footlights and began the rendition of the pathetic ballad, "It Would Have Been All the Same Today If You Hadn't Done What You Did."—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

He Was Under Oath.

The late Professor Rowland of Johns Hopkins university was the most eminent physicist since the days of Joseph Henry. Among his notable achievements in the realm of pure science was the calculation of the mechanical equivalent of heat and the use of gratings in spectrum analysis, for which purpose he devised a machine that could cut 40,000 lines to the inch on a plate of polished metal. In the practical application of his knowledge he was noted as the inventor of the multi-plate telegraph apparatus.

Some years ago, testifying in a case involving the Cataract Power company, in answer to a question on cross examination as to who, in his opinion, was the greatest American scientist, he replied, "I am."

After leaving the courtroom one of the lawyers ventured to criticize this answer for its effect upon the jury, whereupon Rowland exclaimed: "Well, what else could I say? Wasn't I under oath?"—New York Globe.

Not Well to Butt In.

"After the crash," imparted the first hospital surgeon to the second, "I ran over to where it lay on the pavement, and when I raised it up I saw at once that its ribs were smashed, while a gaping hole was torn in it."—"Pardon me, doctor," broke in the medical student, who had caught these words as he was about to pass by into the comminatory ward, "but if you have no objections I'd like to take a few notes on that accident case." He pulled his notebook from his pocket. "Was the case a child?" "No," the surgeon informed him to his embarrassment. "I was speaking of my umbrella."—Judge.
